INDIVIDUAL ATTENTION — Sometimes individual attention is needed for "seemingly routine" tasks like tying shoes. BOCES' special education teachers are there to assist with patience and understanding.

NEW PALTZ/Educable students, eight classrooms for Trainable students, four classrooms for Child Study, four classrooms for multiply-handicapped children, an all purpose room, and areas for supportive services.

The BOCES Special Education Program provides experiences and opportunities for the development of habits, attitudes, and skills which are essential to successful living. BOCES teachers and other staff members are concerned about social and emotional maturity, as well as the physical maturity of the students. Special Education is just that "education for special children," . . . children who deserve the opportunity to develop to their fullest capacities.

The BOCES Building Proposal will provide standard facilities which will assist personnel in meeting the needs of retarded and handicapped students in classes for the multiply handicapped children. The proposed facility will provide reasonable quarters for this valuable service to our children.

CLASSROOM SESSION — Limited class enrollments provide the opportunity for close scrutiny of pupils' academic, social and physical development while they learn.

EEA to Aid In Recycling

KINGSTON, Residents of these areas are urged to cooperate by saving papers and delivering them to the various depots in their particular areas. In the city, BPW Superintendent Charles Cole is asking the cooperation of all city residents to save their papers and magazines and bring them to any of the depots on the assigned days. The depots will be open to receive the paper on Dec. 11 and 12.

Organizers of the massive drive headed by Mrs. Shirley Kobran stressed that only newspapers and magazines will be processed in December and they should be bundled separately. The depot in Kingston will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the two weekend days.

The Task Force and Environmental Program have scheduled a film showing and slide presentation on ecology and the environment Wednesday, Dec. 8 at 8 a.m. in George Washington School. The film will be entitled "1971: Admittance to the showing is free and all are invited."

Randall will present a slide showing and commentary on the before and after picture of the Esopus Creek. The slides were made available by the Lower Esopus Waterway Committee.

Local Lions Action For Eye Transplant

KINGSTON The enucleation was performed within the time limit on Sunday. Charles Schaller, chairman of the committee and Frank Simpson, a committee member, assisted in the enucleation (both have received special medical training for the operation), and then carefully placed the eyes in a special styrofoam container packed with ice.

Even before this step was taken, the Sight Committee had contacted the Eye Bank in Schenectady and learned that a sightless man was awaiting the transplant organs. After the enucleation, Schaller and Simpson raced to the Albany Medical Center and transferred the eyes to a waiting surgeon.

The operation was performed a short time later, and is expected to be a total success. This same procedure has been taken place more than 60 times before; that representing the number of times the Sight Committee of the Kingston Lions Club has participated in a sight-saving eye-transplant operation. More than 1,000 persons throughout the Kingston area have yielded their eyes to death of the donor; if more time elapses, the eyes are unusable, the Lions Club Sight program.

Soviet Mars Mission Puzzles Scientists

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The announcement in Moscow that a Russian capsule had landed on Mars left American scientists as puzzled as ever about the mission of the Soviet Union's Mars 2 and 3 spacecraft.

They stand ready to applaud a Soviet achievement, but until the Soviets reveal more details the significance of the feat can't be assessed.

"The question is, have they landed an instrument package on Mars that is sending back data or have they just sent down a flag?" said a scientist at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

The announcement Tuesday from Tass, the Soviet news agency, said that as Mars 2 passed within 776 miles of Mars on Saturday a capsule was separated from it and delivered to the surface of Mars a pennant showing the Soviet Union's coat of arms.

But the Russians gave no further information about the lander. They didn't say whether it contained instruments, or if the capsule survived the landing and was sending back data.

Nor did they say when Mars 3, launched nine days behind Mars 2 last May, would reach Mars.

The announcement said that Mars 2, after dispatching the capsule, went into Martian orbit and began transmitting data.

Speculation here is that an instrument package with a flag was sent to the surface, probably by parachute.

The flag, one scientist suggested, might be to salvage Soviet pride if something went wrong and the instruments were destroyed.

But if the Soviet Union has landed an instrument package, the scientists here agree, it is a significant step in the exploration of the planets.

"For everyone's sake, I hope they have landed instruments and are receiving data. If that is the case, it will be a fantastic accomplishment that we ought to take our hats off to. The entire scientific community should applaud it," said Dr. Robert Sharp, a Cal Tech geologist working with Mariner 9, the U.S. craft, now orbiting Mars.

"I think they're to be heartily commended," said Dr. Carl Sagan of Cornell University, here also for study of data from Mariner 9. "Of course we want to know what sort of scientific instrumentation is on board and until we find out, it's hard to assess the experimental program. But merely landing, even if there is no instrumentation, is an achievement."

If the Soviets have landed a capsule that can sample the atmosphere, photograph the surrounding terrain, take the Martian temperature and perhaps reach out a mechanical arm to scoop the soil, they will have achieved an important milestone. They probably can obtain data the United States can't from the orbiting Mariner 9.

Police Charge Man With Parents' Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have charged a recent mental patient at Bellevue Hospital with homicide after finding his mother and father hacked to death with "six or seven deep gashes" from a hatchet in their Manhattan apartment.

A telephone call from a neighbor led police Tuesday to the comfortable five-room apartment on the 20th floor where they said they found Herbert Gans, 30, sitting quietly on the living room couch, covered with blood.

In separate bedrooms lay the bodies of Jack R. Gans, 65, a retired cab driver, and his wife, Delphine, 62.

Det. George Wolbert surmised that the father had been slain in bed about 11 p.m. Monday and that Mrs. Gans had been killed in another bedroom after she tried to intercede.

Herbert Gans, who was released to out-patient status from Bellevue Hospital last Friday after being admitted Nov. 19, offered no resistance, pointed out the bodies of his parents, and located the hatchet, in a closet police said.

Wolbert described Gans as a "brooder with a general distrust of people."

A neighbor told police she had received a telephone call from Gans' sister, Judy Gans, 23, of Cambridge, Mass., who said her brother had warned her in a telephone call that "something bad has happened."

Killer Abducts Daughter Of Victim

MELROSE, Fla. (UPI) — The killer of two women at a roadside beauty parlor apparently abducted the teenage daughter of one of the victims, possibly because she witnessed the murders, police said today.

The bodies of Jobbie Turner, 38, and Pat Marr, 22, were found Tuesday morning by a woman customer arriving for a hair dressing appointment at Nell's Style Shop. Miss Marr's body was nude and Mrs. Turner's body was clad only in a bra.

Police issued an all-points bulletin for Mrs. Turner's daughter, Valerie, 16, believed to have been "carried away by whoever committed the murders," according to police.

The only lead police had was a report that Mrs. Turner, a divorcee, was seen talking late Monday night to two men in a Keystone Heights service station. The station attendant told police he did not get a clear look at the men.

Man Cited In Accident

TOWN OF ULSTER

Three men including a Kingston High School teacher were seriously injured shortly before 4 p.m. Tuesday when the cars in which they were riding were involved in a crash on Albany Avenue Extension at Morton Boulevard.

The men were taken from the scene of the mishap to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance.

Deputy Sheriff Christopher Jones said the vehicles were operated by Donald Avalone, 30, of RD 1, West Hurley, a KHS teacher, and Anthony Albano, 44, of 36 Lipton Street, Kingston. Albano was cited by Jones for failure to yield the right of way.

Avalone, accompanied by three high school students, was driving out Albany Avenue Extension and Albany was pulling out of a parking lot when the accident occurred, police said. Steven Cline, Jr., 17, of 10 Coffey Place, a student and passenger in Avalone's car suffered multiple contusions, lacerations and a possible skull fracture, police said. His head went through the windshield of the car, Jones reported.

Avalone sustained lacerations, multiple contusions and a possible skull fracture. Albano suffered a broken hip and other injuries.

Two other students riding with Avalone were apparently not injured. Jones identified them as Joshua Sippin of 32 Lucas Avenue, and Steven Davis, of 175 North Manor Avenue.

Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

Sheriff's Corporal Attends Traffic Management Sessions

KINGSTON—Corporal Walter Baschnagel of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department is attending a 10-week course on the subject The Science of Traffic Management sponsored by the New York State Police, according to Sheriff William B. Martin.

The course, being given at the State Police Academy in Albany, started Monday.

The comprehensive course is designed to broaden the knowledge and skills of police — both state and local — in all phases of the traffic problems.

Areas of study will include traffic law enforcement, law for police, special enforcement equipment, accident investigation, statistical data analysis, federal role in highway safety, support groups, public relations and traffic problems.

Tuition, meals, lodging, classroom materials and textbooks are provided by the State. There is no cost to the trainee.

"The Traffic Science Training Program is the first of what we hope will be many educational services that will benefit the law enforcement profession throughout the state," said Superintendent William E. Kirwan of the State Police.

superintendent said. "Higher everywhere," Kirwan con education and training are the tined. "It is my sincere wish shortest route to the that as many local supervisory professionalism necessary to officers as possible have the meet these challenges.

"Traffic safety ranks high training program being offered among the concerns of police in this vital project."

Social Security Advice Given

KINGSTON—Some of the United States' 1.5 million household workers may be missing out on social security protection, according to George J. Habernig, social security district manager in Kingston.

Many homemakers are unaware that they are required to send in quarterly wage reports and social security contributions for household workers they employ," Habernig said. "And that can deprive household workers and their families of disability survivors, retirement and Medicare protection under social security."

A household worker's cash wages count for social security if they amount to $50 or more from one employer in a three month calendar quarter.

"This generally means that the cash wages of a household worker are covered by social the complexities of the modern security if he or she regularly day police function," the earns $4 a week o. more done for any one homemaker," according to Habernig.

The homemaker-employer is responsible for sending in a quarterly report of household worker wages that are subject to social security contributions. The homemaker-employer also is responsible for sending in the social security contributions involved, Habernig said.

A free leaflet, Social Security and Your Household Employee, is available at the Kingston Social Security Office, 57 Albany Avenue.

Rotron is the leading manufacturer of air-moving devices (blowers and fans) for The annual meeting of the the electronics industry.

Increased production and slightly higher profits for 1972 were forecast by Charles J. Lawson Jr., president and chief executive officer of Rotron, Inc. in his annual address to stockholders recently.

Lawson recounted the firm's drastic slump in sales and profits during 1969 and 1970, and then said, "I feel that we have turned the corner."

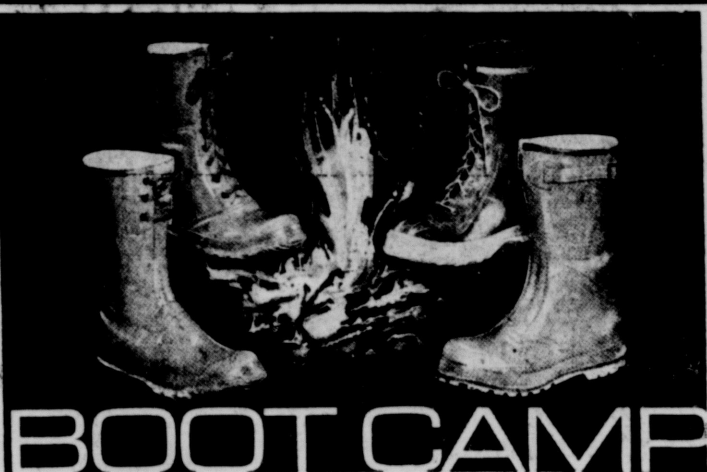

"Our incoming order rate which declined, for some 18 months, turned up, starting last January. Since that time, our incoming orders have continued to improve," said Lawson.

He added, "Our overhead costs have been pared, our manufacturing efficiencies have dramatically improved, our marketing operation substantially strengthened and our new management team has and is developing some very specific plans for further improvements."

Sales for Rotron during the first quarter of fiscal, 1972, which ended Oct. 30, totaled $3,338,000, on which the firm earned approximately $71,000 or 12 cents a share. "By comparison," said Lawson, "the first quarter last year, we earned only three cents a share on a slightly larger sales volume. The present outlook for our second fiscal quarter ending this December is for shipments to be up over our first quarter, perhaps as much as 10 per cent."

Lawson, however, indicated that it was difficult to project business conditions beyond the first half of fiscal 1972. "If the economic conditions continue to improve," said Lawson, "we should continue our progress. However, I am concerned about the recent wave of pessimism that seems to be affecting Wall Street and many of our business leaders."

Emphasis for fiscal 1972, according to Lawson, will be placed "on continuing to improve our operating efficiency, reducing our product costs and

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(© 1971, Emily Post Institute, Inc.)

DEAR MRS. POST: Your column about supermarket manners was of great interest to me, and I think I passed your test fairly well. When I see a cart outside the store I restore it to the inside, park it properly and call it my Girl Scout deed for the day. Also I often get cold fingers from rearranging sadly tousled meats and frozen foods.

But my point is this — way back during World War II, I used to pack my own bags, just to help out the overworked clerks and to speed things up for the other customers. So I have since tried to continue this practice, but was rapped over the knuckles by a checkout girl who told me that it went against union regulations! This seems extra silly, since our store is understaffed, to say the least. I can pack as well as anyone, and I'd much rather be doing something than standing there waiting. Have you ever run into this?

MRS. R. D.

DEAR MRS. D: I have never run into this reaction to packing, and have always found the checkers to be delighted with the help. However, if, in certain stores, it is contrary to union policy the customer must abide by those rules. It is unfortunate that the union prevents speeding up the checking-out process and improving the customer-store relationship.

DEAR MRS. POST: So often after my husband and I have been guests at a dinner party, theater party, etc., I find myself questioning the manner in which my thank you note is written. Is it proper to include both the host and hostess in the salutation, or is the note and the envelope addressed to only the hostess?

ANDREA

DEAR ANDREA: When you are entertained by a man and wife, even though she may have actually issued the invitation, the thank-you note is addressed to both. The envelope goes to "Mr. and Mrs." and the salutation is to "Dear Mary and John."

DEAR MRS. POST: I am a divorcee and have been dating a very nice man in my office. I have a 2-year-old girl and the budget is so tight that if I hire a baby sitter it means I will have to go without lunch for a few days to make up the money. Am I expected to pay for the baby sitter, or is it proper for my date to pay if I explain the problem? I asked him to have supper at my apartment to avoid the problem, but he refused.

Geraldine

Dear Geraldine: Which do you want most—the man, or lunch? When you know him better—well enough 'o discuss something as personal as finances—you might bring up the subject of paying for a sitter. But until then, don't do it! If you like him and don't want to scare him off immediately, work out those personal problems without involving him.

Sawyers Topple Rondout

By STEVE KANE

SAUGERTIES Rondout was only ten points down when Bill Joyner picked up his fourth personal foul late in the third period in Saugerties Tuesday night, but before Joyner could get back in the game, Rich Koegel netted five buckets and the Sawyers drew away to a 67-42 victory in the season opened up a 35-24 halftime lead mostly on the shooting of Tom Whitaker, as both clubs were sluggish and cold from the floor. Whitaker, who finished the night with 23 markers, picked up 16 of them in the first two periods. When he cooled off, Koegel took over, garnering 28 for individual honors.

"I was really surprised," said first-year Sawyer coach Larry Marcus. "I didn't think we could play defense like that."

Both teams used a zone, but while Saugerties consistently beat the Ganders down the court, Rondout couldn't turn it around. The Ganders down the court, Rondout couldn't turn it around. The Ganders down the court, Rondout couldn't turn it around.

Bill Joyner, Rondout's All-County ace, paced the losers with 15 points, but it wasn't enough as coach John Meehan noted:

"Our problem is that we just don't get the ball into the hoop enough. We have too many turnovers, and we're supposed to be a ball-control club."

The tight Saugerties defense choked off Rondout repeatedly before the Ganders could get off a shot, and none of the visitors could find the range to break the zone.

Both teams started slowly with almost a full minute of scoreless basketball. Rondout stayed even for half of the first period, then fell behind by five at the quarter mark. As Saugerties outthrust their opponents, the scoreboard began to show the results. In the third quarter the Ganders would only manage five points and trailed by as much as 27 points in the fourth period.

With Joyner in foul trouble, Rondout just didn't have the punch to stay close. Coach Marcus, a former standout at Kingston High, went into the game with some uncertainties. Ray Bean, a starter

UPI Rates UCLA No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI)—Defending champion UCLA has been selected by the United Press International Board of Coaches as the pre-season choice for the 1971-72 national collegiate basketball title.

The top-ranked Bruins were runaway winners in the pre-season balloting, receiving 16 first place votes from the 31 coaches participating. UCLA's point total was 283 while second place Marquette had 190.

Marquette, which got two first place votes, was followed by Southern California, with three first place votes and 178 points. North Carolina, which got the most first place votes after UCLA (8) was fourth with 165 points.

Defending Big Ten champion Ohio State got one first place vote and was fifth with 165 points and was followed by Houston (6th), Maryland (7th), and Louisville (8th). The sophomore-studded Maryland club also received a first place vote. Long Beach State and Kentucky completed the top 10.

UCLA coach Johnny Wooden has gained the respect of his coaching colleagues despite losing the heart of last year's national titlist club. Gone from the 1970-71 Bruin outfit are forwards Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe, center Steve Patterson and guard Terry Schofield.

Second-rated Marquette was also hit hard by graduation although not so much in quantity as in quality. All America guard Dean Meminger has graduated as has forward Gary Brell. Coach Al McGuire has a highly-touted junior college transfer forward prospect in 6-9 Larry MacNeil.

Southern Cal returns guard Paul Westphal, center Ron Riley and forward Joe Mackey but has lost guard Dennis "Mo" Layton. North Carolina returns the bulk of its National Invitation Tournament championship team in forwards Bill Chamblain and Dennis Wuy. Clark and guards George Karl and Steve Previs. The Tarheels also have a prize junior college transfer in 6-9 Robert McAdoo.

Ohio State has center Luke Witte and guard Alan Hornsby back from last year's sophomore unit and Houston oriented 6-7 Dwight Davis. But it is Maryland, where Lefty Driesell is assembling a mon-ster, which bears watching. The Terrapins will unveil 6-11 Tom McMillen, the most sought-after

After that it was Kansas (16th), Villanova (17th), Michigan (18th), Harvard (19th) and the U. of Pacific (20th).

South Carolina's Frank McGuire lost John Roche and Tom Owens from last year's Atlantic Coast Conference championship

It's Another First For Chicago Cubs

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

PHOENIX (UPI)—The Chicago Cubs have solved the whole problem perfectly.

Next time there's any trouble at all, Hank Aguirre will keep the clubhouse door closed 15 minutes so everyone can cool off.

Who? Hank Aguirre. You remember him, don't you? A pretty fair left-handed pitcher and the world's worst hitter.

The Cubs released him in July of 1970 but they never really forgot him because he was one in a million, a guy a whole lot like Brooks Robinson in that the players all liked him, management liked him and the press liked him.

So Monday night the Cubs pulled off another first. They were the first to use all their coaches as revolving managers and the first to go out and hire themselves an athletic director. On Monday night they made more history. They named a "team information and services coach" or what it really boils down to, a public relations coach, the first of his kind.

The original announcement provoked a lot of head-scratching. Was Hank Aguirre being hired as a liaison man between Leo Durocher and the press or Leo Durocher and his players? As usual, the Cubs didn't make the whole thing completely clear.

It turns out Hank Aguirre, a personable, 40-year-old Detroit of Mexican ancestry, probably will be pressed into service on both counts. And with Leo Durocher's complete blessing, too.

Says Leo regarding Aguirre's function between himself and the Cubs' players:

"He's here to help me, to help the players and to help the front office. If there's anything going on, I'm gonna nip it quick. I'm not gonna let it get out of hand."

Durocher means the way it did last summer when Cubs' owner Phil Wrigley took out big ads in the Chicago newspaper and paid $40,000 to announce what everyone really knew already, namely that he was boss of the ball club, following a noisy clubhouse hullabaloo involving Ron Santo, Joe Pepitone, Milt Pappas and Leo. As far as Aguirre's duties with the press are concerned, Durocher has this to say:

"I can't be in nine different places at one time. What if I'm in centerfield or at second base before a ball game and you can't get to me? You see Aguirre. I think he's a helluva man. I didn't want to bring an outsider in."

The decision to bring in Aguirre, who has 20 years in pro ball, was Durocher's, and when general manager John Holland first heard it he said "great idea." Accordingly, Holland called the tall, dark-haired Aguirre in Detroit last Tuesday and put the proposition to him. Hank jumped at it because he had always gotten along fine with Durocher and he found that after being out of the game a year and a half he missed it.

"I did some thing after the call," says Aguirre. "I thought how two coaches right in Detroit—Bill Van Breda Koff of the Pistons and Doug Barklay of the Red Wings—had left their jobs within the last month.

"Van Breda Koff said 'I just can't reach the players any more and it was pretty much the same reason with Barklay. I concluded that communication between manager and player was even more important than everyone has been led to believe. This job I've got now, I don't see myself as any 'messenger boy.' I see it a lot more important than that. If one of our players has a problem and is understandably leary about going to Leo with it, he can come to me. I'll try to straighten it out, and if I can't do it myself I'll go to Leo and say so-and-so has a problem."

The Cubs picked the right man in Hank Aguirre. He's the pleasant, non-abrasive type, the perfect one to act as a buffer between Durocher and the players or Durocher and the press.

Meanwhile, Leo says he wasn't at all upset about that announcement two weeks ago. The one out of Acapulco saying he was through.

"I heard it on the radio but it didn't worry me," he says. "No matter what, I had my reservations for the 17th of this month for Acapulco."

Petraglia Tops PBA

AKR N. Ohio (UPI)—Johnny Petraglia's third place finish in last weekend's $85,000 Brunswick World Open in Chicago clinched the Professional Bowlers' Association's money winning title for the Brooklyn, N. Y. native.

Petraglia picked up $4,000 for the third place spot and boosted his winnings to $84,490 with only the Hawaiian Invitational, offering a $2,000 first prize, remaining on the tour.

Don Johnson of Akron, who has been chasing Petraglia in the money race, won the Brunswick event and its $12,000 top prize, but his $79,849 total winnings leaves him $4,641 behind Petraglia.

Larry Laub of San Francisco made the biggest jump in the standings this week, as his $7,000 second place finish as Chicago vaulted him from 20th to 12th with $25,493.

The PBA announced Tuesday the 13 steps on the 1972 tour, which will dangle more than $2 million in prize money in front of the pros.

The single most valuable tourney will be the $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions March 28-April 1 in Akron.

The tour will start with the $100,000 Bowling Proprietors Association of America U.S. Open at New York's Madison Square Garden Jan. 2-8.

The remainder of the schedule includes the $50,000 Denver Open Jan. 11-15; $77,777 "Senior" Invitational at Las Vegas, Nev., Jan. 18-22; $60,000 Don Carter Classic at Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 25-29; $85,000 "Senior" Open at San Jose, Calif., Feb. 1-5; $50,000 King Louie Open at Kanas City, Mo., Feb. 1-8.

Cambodian Forces Retreat

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian forces were reported in retreat today under an onslaught of North Vietnamese attacks along Highway 6 on the northeastern front.

Official reports reaching Saigon said the Cambodians had pulled out of Baray on Highway 6, about 60 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital and were retreating from Kompong Thmar, six miles farther north.

The Cambodian government called for more air support from its U.S. and South Vietnamese allies to save the imperiled 20,000 Cambodian troops isolated in pockets along more than 30 miles of Highway 6.

In Saigon, sources described the situation as serious and said there was no reason why the United States could not provide additional air support within certain limitations. The South Vietnamese air force was reported planning to send a helicopter squadron and gunships to support the Cambodians.

The South Vietnamese incursion into eastern Cambodia was supposed to force the North Vietnamese to retreat from the northeastern front to protect bases from the South Vietnamese but there was no indication of this. South Vietnamese troops are about 50 miles east of the Cambodian front.

"Baray and Kompong Thmar are asking us for intensive air support because fighting is so heavy," the commander of Cambodia's tiny air force told Associated Press correspondent Robin Mannoek.

"The other side has been strengthening with a lot of reinforcements," said Col. So Satto. "We still hold both Baray and Kompong Thmar, but this is the general offensive. For the moment the situation is very serious, but not yet alarming."

Meanwhile, 57,000 South Vietnamese troops backed by heavy U.S. air support pushed ahead with three day-long offensives, but met only light resistance. Military planners had believed one of the drives, along Highway 7 in eastern Cambodia, would draw off the North Vietnamese attacking the Cambodians on the other side of the Mekong River.

The South Vietnamese command reported enemy rocket and mortar attacks that killed three Saigon soldiers and wounded nine in two of its offensives. But otherwise only

Board Back to Basics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price increase applications late Tuesday when it granted the General Motors Corp. authority to boost prices on 1972 model cars, trucks and optional equipment an average of 2.5 per cent.

Earlier, it had given Ford Motor Co., permission to raise prices 2.9 per cent; Chrysler Corp. 4.5 per cent. and American Motors 2.5 per cent. Chrysler announced it would use only 3 per cent of its price boost authority, leaving all four automakers' prices within one-half of 1 per cent of the 2.5 per cent economy-wide ceiling on price boosts the commission announced as its target earlier in November.

The knottiest problem facing the seven members of the commission is coal prices. More than a week ago the Pay Board approved a 15 per cent wage increase for coal miners, and since then applications have been coming in from coal companies seeking price increases to absorb the new costs.

The commission has ruled on none of the 18 coal price boost requests that had been submitted through Tuesday, but the panel already said it may not let the entire wage settlement "pass through" as increased prices.

Getting less attention but still vital to the anti-inflation program are pending requests from about a dozen electric companies, 11 telephone companies, 15 gas companies, about 10 pipelines, and 10 or more steel firms. The commission has acted on several steel applications, but thus far they have involved only sideline products of the big mills.

There also are a number of pending requests from food processing firms, railroads, and communications companies. All are in the category of firms doing $100 million or more business annually which must notify the commission in advance of plans to raise prices.

Donations Again Aid Vietnam GIs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
More than 100 upstate New York GIs serving in Vietnam can come home for the Christmas holidays on leave, their airline tickets paid from public donations in six counties.

The "Home for the Holidays" program, introduced in Cortland County last year when 16 servicemen were brought home, has attracted financial support from individuals, business firms and civic groups.

The eligible servicemen, whose round-trip tickets for the 12,500-mile journey from Saigon cost $479 apiece, will arrive home Dec. 22, in plenty of time for Christmas, and return to the war zone on Jan. 2, the sponsors said Tuesday.

Mrs. Florence Fitzgerald, chairman of the Cortland County Board of Supervisors and originator of the program, said she and her helpers have raised $18,000 to bring 20 local servicemen home this year.

A campaign for $20,000 in Syracuse and Onondaga County that was led by Nancy Singer, a 19-year-old college student, has gone well over the top and will assure Christmas at home for 40 GIs.

The Cayuga County campaign, coordinated by Police Detective Sgt. Carmen Bertonica of Auburn, has a tentative list of 13 participating GIs and $8,000 in donations.

In Montgomery County, a drive led by Thomas McNamara, an Amsterdam ward supervisor, has raised about $6,500—enough for 13 tickets—including $1,500 collected by a teen-aged girls' club.

Thirteen Madison County servicemen will benefit from the $8,000 raised in a drive led by Robert Bangert, Town of Nelson supervisor. Young people raised $2,400 of the total with bake sales, auctions, dances, concerts and distribution of collection cans.

Ninety-six North Vietnamese were killed in the highlands offensive over the weekend, the allied commands said. At the cost of two South Vietnamese killed and 27 wounded. Three U.S. observation helicopters were shot down, and six American crewmen wounded.

New Front Opened By Indian Troops

By United Press International

Pakistani military spokesmen said today Indian troops have opened a new front in the Rangpur-Dinajpur area of East Pakistan—the same area where heavy fighting was reported earlier in the week.

Indian spokesmen said the drive was an attempt to knock out Pakistani artillery which has been shelling Indian border areas.

Indian Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram said earlier Indian troops had been ordered to move into Pakistani territory if they thought it was necessary to stop Pakistani artillery.

The spokesman said artillery has killed 31 persons and wounded 58 others in Balurhat, a town of 60,000 on the Indo-Pakistan border.

Balurhat is about 18 miles south of Hilli—the scene of heavy fighting earlier. Only sporadic fighting was reported in the Hilli area Tuesday.

Pakistani spokesmen in Rawalpindi said Indians have made "small gains" but their success has been "at a great loss of arms and men."

The spokesman said India is resorting to the use of tanks, artillery and reinforcements after a drubbing by Pakistani soldiers.

The main battle areas have been in the Dinajpur and Hilli areas in northwest East Pakistan and in the Sylhet area—a mountainous tea-producing area in the northeast.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told parliament Tuesday Pakistani troops should withdraw from East Pakistan to prove the West Pakistan-based government is interested in peace.

East Pakistan unilaterally declared itself independent last March.

East and West Pakistan are separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory. The fighting involving Pakistani troops, Indian forces and rebel guerrilla fighters has been in East Pakistan, which is bordered on three sides by India and the Bay of Bengal on the fourth.

Pakistanis Driven Back
UPI Correspondent Robert Kaylor quoted Indian spokesmen in New Delhi as saying rebel troops had driven Pakistani soldiers out of Radhanagar, a small town about four miles from the Indian border in the Sylhet area.

Pakistani officials said Indian troops helped the rebels but the Indians denied it. Pakistan spokesmen also said their troops abandoned the small town of Pachagarh in the Hilli area under pressure of Indian attack.
